DAY 2 CO-CREATION CANVAS

Reframe it together: Virley & Sons

Jesse Stanway and Anshu Sharma. 20 minutes. Fill from left to right; one sticky note per idea.

1. What we see (5 min)

Read the four data cards. Which one surprises you most? What does it say about a customer?

2. Reframe it (5 min)

Finish the sentence.

The real opportunity is not _____ , it is _____.

3. Bold idea (10 min)

What one experience would feel the same to a client in London, Orlando and online, and to a colleague serving them?

Business (B)

What must be true commercially?

eXperience (X)

What does the client feel? And the colleague?

Technology (T)

What would make it possible, and what already exists?

Test it: what would have to be true for this to work? Who would block it? What do we need to find out before the board?

DATA CARDS

Four numbers from the data pack

Cut along the borders and place on the table. Figures are FY-1 unless stated.

VALUE PER SALE

-13%

London: GBP 71.8 to 62.6 per sale, while the number of sales rose 7%. Birmingham holds near GBP 115.

Ask: Is the shop selling less per visit, or to a different customer?

ONLINE VISITS

982k

Only GBP 5.7m online revenue, about GBP 5.76 per visit. 58% of visits come from outside the UK.

Ask: What stops a visit becoming an order?

HELP-PAGE VIEWS

1.9x

Contact-us and delivery FAQ pages were viewed 1.9 times as often as womenswear.

Ask: What are people struggling to find out?

LOGISTICS COST

17.5%

Of group revenue in FY-1. Edinburgh runs at 20.6%. The stock-order process has four pain points.

Ask: Where does the effort go that the client never sees?

Caveats: currency assumed GBP; "number of sales" assumed transactions; page figures are views.

SCRIBING SHEET

Client and colleague journey

Draw the journey as they tell it. Mark friction with a red dot and delight with a green dot.
